

From Independent Artist to Artist Support Platform: The Story Behind El Grande Music World

Barcelona, Spain Jun 5, 2026 (Issuewire.com) - For many independent artists, breaking through the noise of today's music industry can be a frustrating experience. Despite the abundance of digital platforms, services, and opportunities, finding genuine support often remains a challenge. Too many artists are left navigating a complex industry alone, spending valuable time searching for trustworthy partners instead of focusing on their music.

That reality is exactly what inspired the creation of El Grande Music World (EGMW).

Founded in Barcelona by independent recording artist Juan El Grande, El Grande Music World was born from firsthand experience. After years of releasing music independently, pitching songs, searching for playlist opportunities, contacting media outlets, and trying to understand the ever-changing music landscape, one thing became clear: independent artists need better support, clearer guidance, and access to reliable services under one roof.

"Like many independent musicians, I often felt that the industry was designed for those who already had connections, budgets, or established teams behind them," says Juan El Grande. "I wanted to create a place where artists could find real support, practical tools, and professional services without having to search dozens of different websites."

Today, El Grande Music World brings together a growing collection of artist-focused services designed to help musicians at every stage of their journey. The platform combines both free and premium services, allowing artists to choose the support they need based on their goals and budget.

Services currently available through the platform include:

- Playlist promotion opportunities
- Music distribution solutions
- Press and media coverage
- Artist networking opportunities
- Artwork development services
- Record label support
- Educational resources and free tools
- Community engagement through Discord

While some resources remain completely free, EGMW believes that professional artist support requires expertise, dedication, and significant time investment.

"Quality guidance takes work," explains Juan El Grande. "A professional service cannot always be free if it is going to deliver real value. Our goal is to provide premium support at fair and affordable prices while continuing to offer free resources wherever possible."

Unlike many traditional music industry services, El Grande Music World focuses on transparency, accessibility, and personal support. Every service offered is designed with the independent artist in mind, helping musicians grow their audience, improve their releases, and develop sustainable careers.

Based in Barcelona and operating globally through digital channels, El Grande Music World welcomes artists from every genre and every stage of development.
