

New Wuhan Office Supports Clarusto Logistics' Growing International Network

Expanding freight forwarding, logistics management, and supply chain support services in one of China's leading transportation hubs.

Glasgow, Scotland Jun 7, 2026 (IssueWire.com) - Clarusto Logistics today announced the launch of its new operational office in Wuhan, China, reinforcing the company's commitment to supporting international trade and expanding its logistics network across key global markets.

Situated in the heart of Hubei Province, the new facility will serve as a strategic base for regional logistics operations, customer engagement, freight coordination, and business development activities. The expansion reflects Clarusto Logistics' continued investment in strengthening its presence within major trade corridors and supporting customers with efficient supply chain solutions.

Located at Room 2210, No. 83 Yanjiang Avenue, Wuhan, Hubei Province, China, the office is positioned within one of China's most influential transportation and commercial centers. Wuhan's extensive connectivity by rail, road, air, and inland waterways makes it a vital gateway for domestic distribution and international trade.

The new office is expected to improve operational responsiveness, facilitate stronger local partnerships, and enhance communication between customers, suppliers, and logistics stakeholders. Businesses operating across manufacturing, retail, e-commerce, and international trade sectors will benefit from increased regional support and streamlined logistics coordination.

"Expanding into Wuhan represents an important milestone in our global growth strategy," said a spokesperson for Clarusto Logistics. "As supply chains become increasingly interconnected, having a stronger presence in central China enables us to work more closely with customers and partners while delivering the responsive logistics support required in today's fast-moving trading environment."

China continues to play a critical role in global commerce, and Wuhan has emerged as a significant hub for manufacturing, distribution, and transportation activities. By establishing a dedicated office in the region, Clarusto Logistics aims to strengthen its operational capabilities while supporting the evolving needs of businesses moving goods across domestic and international markets.

The expansion aligns with the company's long-term vision of building a globally connected logistics network focused on reliability, efficiency, and customer success. With the addition of the Wuhan office, Clarusto Logistics is better positioned to support cargo movement, freight management, and supply chain coordination throughout Asia and beyond.
