

Salestrics Launches on Product Hunt, Introducing an AI-Native Revenue Workspace Built for Modern Startups

The AI-Native Revenue Workspace for Startups

Maryville, Tennessee Jun 27, 2026 (IssueWire.com) - Salestrics today announced its official launch on Product Hunt, introducing a new AI-native revenue workspace designed to help startups replace disconnected sales tools with a single, intelligent platform.

Built from the ground up for founders and growing teams, Salestrics combines CRM, pipeline management, AI assistance, customer communications, document management, internal collaboration, and business intelligence into one unified workspace. Instead of switching between multiple applications, teams can manage their entire revenue operation from a single platform.

"Most startups spend more time managing software than growing their business," said Austin Buhl, Founder and CEO of Salestrics. "We built Salestrics to eliminate that complexity. AI shouldn't be another tool you bolt onto your workflow—it should be woven into every part of how your business operates."

Salestrics includes an AI Assistant that helps users manage pipelines, draft emails, summarize customer interactions, answer questions about business data, generate insights, and automate repetitive work. The platform also features Connect for team video and chat, Orbit for organization-wide

See on IssueWire