

Dive In: Dex System's Ocean-Inspired Fiction for Summer 2026

A wave of water-themed titles ties the catalog to travel and vacation season.

Boston, Massachusetts Jul 30, 2026 (IssueWire.com) - As readers pack for beach and boat trips in the weeks following the Fourth of July, Dex System Publishing is surfacing its ocean-inspired catalog — fiction steeped in literal water and sea imagery for readers craving something to match the season's scenery.

The list is anchored by Ocean Moon and Silicon Cross: 200 Centuries of Signal, both by Rane Corvus, an author whose interconnected catalog — including the Sovereign Sync series — continues to grow with each release. Also featured are Skin to Sea: The Zero-Latent Man by Brooks Miller and E+Drive: The Good Ghost (A Tale of Choice) by Ronald Bartholomew, both of which bring a quieter, more reflective tone to the grouping.

"Rane Corvus has quietly built one of the catalog's most interconnected worlds," said a Dex System spokesperson. "Ocean Moon is a great entry point for readers who want to see where the threads lead, especially heading into the back half of summer."

The release is pitched as much to travel and lifestyle desks as to book-trade outlets — the 'what to pack' angle gives it a natural home in vacation-season coverage. A short author Q&A with Rane Corvus is available on request for outlets looking for a sidebar feature alongside the main list.
