Queensbury, New York Jul 7, 2026 (Issuewire.com) - Heivy has been named a Silver Winner in the Branded Content – Supplement category at the 2026 TITAN Health Awards, an international awards program that celebrates excellence in healthcare, wellness, fitness, and health communications.

The award recognizes Heivy's work in creating content that helps consumers navigate wellness topics with greater confidence. Over the past year, the brand has expanded its collection of nutrition resources, ingredient spotlights, wellness articles, product education materials, and social media content aimed at answering common questions about supplements and healthy living.

As more consumers turn to online resources for guidance, Heivy has focused on creating content that is practical, approachable, and easy to understand. The brand's goal has been to break down everyday wellness topics into information that feels useful and relevant.

The content recognized by the TITAN Health Awards was built around a simple idea: helping people better understand nutrition, ingredients, and healthy habits. Through educational articles, wellness guides, and digital campaigns, Heivy has worked to provide resources that support informed choices and encourage a more balanced approach to wellness.

According to the official notification from the TITAN Health Awards, Heivy's submission was selected

"That's why we've invested so much effort into creating content that answers real questions and makes wellness topics easier to understand. We're honored that those efforts have been recognized by the TITAN Health Awards."
