

Hide-A-Way Doors Featured Nationally for Custom Hidden Door Designs and Secret Rooms

Tennessee-based company gains national attention for real wood hidden bookcase doors and secret room solutions

Morristown, Tennessee Jul 10, 2026 (IssueWire.com) - Hide-A-Way Doors, a Tennessee-based manufacturer specializing in custom hidden bookcase doors and secret room solutions, is gaining national attention for its innovative craftsmanship and appearances in major media outlets including Ask This Old House, Renovation Resort, and a feature in The New York Times.

Founded by Christopher P. Rupell, Sr., a contractor with over 35 years of experience, Hide-A-Way Doors has built a reputation for designing and manufacturing high-quality, real wood hidden doors that seamlessly blend into residential and commercial spaces. The company has produced thousands of custom installations across the United States, helping homeowners create hidden offices, private rooms, and secure spaces.

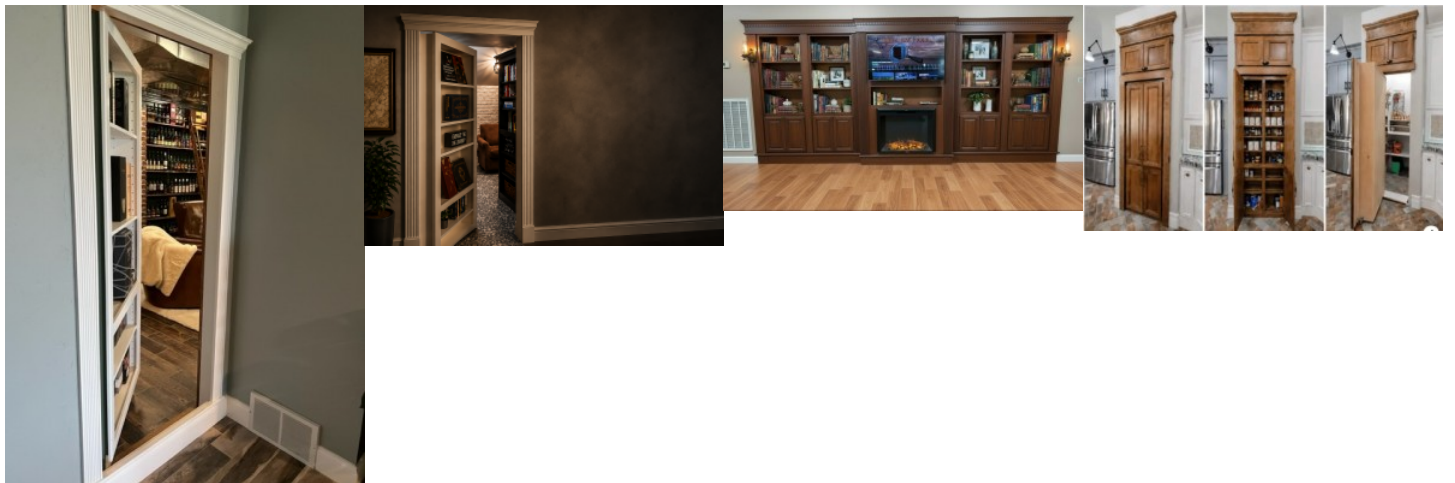

Unlike mass-produced alternatives, Hide-A-Way Doors focuses on fully customizable solutions built from premium materials. Each hidden door is designed to function as a real piece of furniture while maintaining strength, durability, and smooth operation.

“Our goal has always been to build something that feels like it belongs in the home,” said Rupell. “A hidden door should disappear into the space while still being strong and functional.”

Hide-A-Way Doors continues to compete in the growing hidden door market by focusing on craftsmanship, customization, and direct-to-consumer manufacturing.
