

Tankless Water Solutions Expands Access to Advanced On-Demand Water Heating Systems Across the UK

Tankless Water Solutions Ltd is helping UK businesses, industries and homeowners explore modern alternatives to traditional water heating with a wide range of electric tankless.

Middlewich, Cheshire Jul 28, 2026 (Issuewire.com) - Tankless Water Solutions Ltd is helping UK businesses, industries and homeowners explore modern alternatives to traditional water heating with a wide range of electric tankless and instantaneous water heating systems designed for diverse applications.

Based in Middlewich, Cheshire, Tankless Water Solutions supports customers across the UK with water heating equipment for commercial, industrial, food service, residential, offshore and marine environments. The company also supplies specialist systems for applications including emergency drench showers and deionised (DI) and reverse osmosis (RO) water heating.

With technical expertise built through more than 20 years of experience in the heating and renewable energy sectors, Tankless Water Solutions focuses on helping customers identify suitable heating technology for their individual requirements. Its approach combines product knowledge with technical support, enabling customers to consider factors such as application, water demand, electrical requirements and available space when selecting a system.

Unlike conventional storage-based systems, tankless water heaters heat water as it is required, which can help reduce standby heat losses and eliminate the need to store large volumes of heated water. Compact designs can also offer practical benefits where space is limited, making instantaneous water heating a potential option for a variety of residential and commercial environments.

The company's product range includes residential tankless water heaters, commercial electric systems, industrial tankless heaters, catering water heating solutions, hair salon water heaters, marine systems, emergency shower heaters and specialist DI and RO water heating equipment.

For larger commercial and industrial requirements, Tankless Water Solutions offers three-phase electric water heating systems with product options covering a range of applications and power requirements. Its specialist UltraPure tankless deionised water heater is designed for systems requiring the controlled heating of DI and RO water, including certain industrial, laboratory and pharmaceutical applications.

The company also recognises the specific demands of sectors such as catering and hairdressing, where reliable hot water and efficient use of available space can be important considerations. Its range is designed to provide customers with options that can be assessed according to their operational needs rather than relying on a single approach to water heating.

As demand grows for practical and efficient water heating technologies, Tankless Water Solutions continues to provide access to modern systems supported by technical guidance and customer-focused service.

Businesses and homeowners interested in exploring tankless water heating options can contact Tankless Water Solutions Ltd to discuss their requirements and identify a suitable solution for their application.
