

The Thinking Person's Beach Read: Dex System Publishing's Memory-Bending Fiction

Memory, identity, and consciousness-focused sci-fi for readers who like to turn a story over slowly.

New York City, New York Jul 30, 2026 (IssueWire.com) - Dex System Publishing's latest feature turns toward memory and identity — fiction built for readers who want something to sit with rather than race through, a fitting shift as the reflective mood of early summer, set in motion around the Fourth of July, carries into August.

The Mnemosyne Protocol by Harold Morrison and Memory Days by Yug Gohan anchor the list, joined by The Node Seven Sync from Rane Corvus, which ties back to the Sovereign Sync and Ocean Moon features earlier in the campaign, and The Infinite Spiral: Threads of Creation and Becoming by Steven Jacobs.

"These books ask readers to hold two timelines in their head at once, which is a different kind of summer reading than most people expect," a Dex System spokesperson said. "It's a slower burn, but it pays off."

The release pairs naturally with the earlier Morgan Burns introspective-fiction feature for outlets looking to build a 'mind-bending summer' angle, and The Node Seven Sync gives continuity-minded readers another thread to follow across the Rane Corvus catalog.

This grouping is best suited to literary sci-fi coverage and 'thinking person's beach read' features, rather than straight genre-fiction roundups, given the emphasis on interiority over action. Review copies of all four titles are available on request.
