TREASURE HUNT
CRAFTED SINCE 1976

Gurgaon, Haryana Jul 28, 2026 (Issuewire.com) - As the festival of Lord Krishna's birth approaches, Treasure Hunt has rolled out its Krishna Janmashtami Special collection, a curated line of devotional décor and gifting pieces designed to help families across India celebrate the occasion with warmth, meaning, and a touch of artisanal beauty. The collection is live now on the brand's website and brings together handcrafted photo frames, tealight candle holders, and wall art centered on the timeless imagery of Radha and Krishna.

The launch comes at a time when more shoppers are turning to the internet to plan their festive décor, and Treasure Hunt says the new range was built specifically to answer that shift — combining traditional devotional themes with the convenience of doorstep delivery.

A Homegrown Legacy Behind the Festive Launch

Treasure Hunt is the marketing brand of Asian Handicrafts Private Limited, a design-driven manufacturer and export house that has been creating gifts, home décor, and accessories since 1976. That nearly five-decade history in craftsmanship is part of what the brand says sets its festive offerings apart — each piece in the collection is developed with the same attention to detail and material quality that has defined the company's work across home décor, jewelry, and seasonal decorations for generations.

"Janmashtami is a festival of devotion, joy, and togetherness," the brand shared in its collection notes. "Our aim was to build a range that lets people bring that spirit into their homes without compromising on craftsmanship — whether that's a frame for the pooja room or a small gift for a loved one."

Inside the Collection: Frames, Décor, and Devotional Art

At the heart of the new range sits the Lord Radha Krishna Photo Frame, offered in multiple handcrafted styles meant for pooja rooms, living rooms, and entryway walls. Shoppers browsing the collection will find:

- Wall décor and framed art depicting Bal Krishna and Radha Krishna scenes, finished for display above console tables, mandir shelves, or living room walls
- Photo frames built around devotional imagery, positioned as both home décor and gifting pieces
- Tealight and candle holders in handcrafted finishes, including pink-and-gold detailing, meant to add a warm glow to festive evenings
- Premium devotional wall décor designed specifically for pooja rooms and home shrines

Each item is part of what the brand calls its approach to modern Radha Krishna Photo Online Shopping — pairing traditional iconography with materials like resin, crystal, and glass finishes that hold up as long-term keepsakes rather than one-season decorations.

Why Photo Frames Anchor This Year's Collection

Photo frames remain one of the most requested categories heading into Janmashtami, according to Treasure Hunt, largely because they serve two purposes at once: home décor and gifting. A well-made frame can sit permanently in a pooja room long after the festival ends, which is part of why the brand chose to expand this category rather than lean solely on disposable party décor.

Krishna Janmashtami Pictures and Décor Ideas for Every Home

Beyond individual products, Treasure Hunt is positioning the collection as a full decorating resource. Shoppers looking for Krishna Janmashtami Special pictures and styling inspiration can use the range to recreate several popular setups:

- Jhula (swing) displays — a Bal Gopal idol placed on a decorated swing, surrounded by fresh flowers and tealights
- Pooja room makeovers — a handcrafted photo frame paired with an Om showpiece and glowing votives
- Entrance décor — devotional wall hangings positioned to welcome guests
- Table centerpieces — decorative trays combining candle holders, flowers, and small idols
- Gifting stations — decorative boxes packed with prasad or sweets for visiting family and friends

Each of these ideas draws directly from products available in the collection, allowing shoppers to move from inspiration to purchase without hunting across multiple sites.

A Ready-Made Answer to the Janmashtami Special Gift Question

Gifting is central to how many families mark Janmashtami, and Treasure Hunt says its range was built with that in mind. For shoppers searching for a meaningful Janmashtami special gift, the brand recommends its handcrafted jewelry boxes, devotional photo frames, and candle holders — items positioned as much for corporate and colleague gifting as for family exchanges.

"A good festive gift should carry some meaning beyond the moment," the brand noted. "That's the thinking behind pairing our devotional frames and candle holders with premium gift packaging."

Availability and Shopping Details

The full Krishna Janmashtami Special range is available now at Treasure Hunt, with pan-India shipping and secure packaging built for fragile, handcrafted items. Pricing across the collection currently ranges from roughly ₹599 to ₹1,299, with categories spanning candle holders, picture frames, and visual artwork.

Treasure Hunt is advising customers to place orders at least seven to ten days ahead of the festival, noting that handcrafted and fragile pieces tend to sell out faster during the festive rush.
