District Lending Now Featured on Bankrate.com, Expanding National Visibility for Homebuyers

The listing gives borrowers another trusted resource for finding District Lending as they compare mortgage options

Phoenix, Arizona Aug 23, 2026 (Issuewire.com) - District Lending is now featured on Bankrate.com, one of the most widely used platforms for consumers comparing mortgage rates and lenders. The listing marks another step in the company's national expansion and gives homebuyers an additional way to find District Lending as they research their options.

Bankrate has long served as a reference point for people trying to understand where rates stand and which lenders are worth considering. Being featured on the platform places District Lending in front of a large audience of buyers who are actively shopping for a mortgage.

Meeting Borrowers Where They Search

Many homebuyers begin their mortgage search online, often comparing rates and lender reputations before ever picking up the phone. Bankrate.com is one of the first stops for that kind of research, which makes District Lending's presence there a meaningful addition to how the company reaches new clients.

The listing does not change how District Lending operates day to day, but it does widen the pool of borrowers who can discover the company early in their homebuying journey. For a brokerage focused on speed and rate competitiveness, getting in front of buyers sooner can make a real difference.

District Lending's team has said the goal behind expanding its online presence is simple: make it easier for borrowers to find a lender who will actually shop the market on their behalf, rather than presenting a single, fixed rate.

Part of a Larger Growth Story

The Bankrate.com feature arrives alongside other recent milestones for District Lending. The company has grown its annual loan volume to $500 million and gained access to Pylon lending, a partnership that connects clients directly to Wall Street-level mortgage pricing.

Together, these developments paint a picture of a brokerage that is scaling quickly while still keeping its process fast. District Lending continues to deliver pre-approvals within hours and closes many loans in as little as 18 days, a pace that has not slowed despite the company's growing volume.

District Lending backs that speed with a price match guarantee, along with a rate defense program designed to protect borrowers if rates fall after they have locked in. Those protections matter more as the company reaches a wider audience through platforms like Bankrate.com, since new borrowers need reassurance that speed will not come at the cost of a fair rate.

Recognition Beyond One Platform

District Lending's appearance on Bankrate.com adds to a growing list of ways the company has built credibility in the mortgage space. The brokerage has also been recognized as one of the fastest-growing mortgage brokers in the country, a distinction that reflects both its expanding loan volume and its increasing reach across state lines.

That reach now extends well past District Lending's headquarters in Paradise Valley, Arizona. The company is licensed to originate loans in multiple states and actively serves homebuyers in major markets, including California, Arizona, Texas, Colorado, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, and Oregon.

As District Lending's visibility grows on platforms like Bankrate.com, so does the likelihood that borrowers in these markets will come across the company while comparing lenders online.

A Broad Set of Loan Options

Visibility matters most when it connects borrowers to a lender who can actually serve their needs, and District Lending offers a wide range of loan products to do exactly that. The company provides conventional, jumbo, FHA, VA, USDA, DSCR, and construction loans, giving buyers options across different property types and financial situations.

District Lending also offers refinance services and down payment assistance programs, which can be especially useful for borrowers who discover the company through a resource like Bankrate.com while still early in the planning stages of a purchase.

Every client is paired with a dedicated loan officer who manages the process from application through closing. That structure gives new borrowers, including those arriving through Bankrate.com, a consistent point of contact rather than a rotating cast of representatives.

Building Trust at Every Stage

For a mortgage brokerage, visibility and credibility tend to reinforce each other. Being featured on a platform like Bankrate.com signals to borrowers that District Lending has met certain standards, while the company's own track record, from its loan volume to its closing speed, gives that visibility something to back it up.

District Lending's leadership has framed the Bankrate.com listing as one part of a broader strategy to be present wherever borrowers are already looking. As more consumers turn to comparison platforms before contacting a lender directly, that kind of presence has become an important part of how mortgage brokerages compete.

Staying Grounded in Community

Even as District Lending expands its national visibility, the company continues to prioritize its ties to the local community. District Lending supports the Arizona Humane Society, a partnership that reflects its ongoing commitment to giving back in the region where it is headquartered.

That commitment has stayed consistent even as the company's footprint has grown well beyond Arizona, a balance District Lending's leadership considers important to maintain.

Looking Ahead

District Lending expects its presence on Bankrate.com to continue driving new borrower connections in the months ahead. Combined with its recent growth in loan volume and its expanded access to competitive pricing through Pylon lending, the company is positioning itself to reach an even broader base of homebuyers.

As more consumers research their mortgage options online before reaching out to a lender, District Lending's expanded visibility gives the company another way to introduce itself to buyers who might not have found it otherwise.
