company serving Cleveland, Lakewood, and surrounding Northeast Ohio communities, is helping homeowners transform outdated and inefficient spaces into more functional, comfortable homes designed around the way they live.

Founded in 2013, Spot-On Home Improvements specialize in kitchen remodeling, bathroom remodeling and home improvements, providing homeowners with remodeling solutions that range from cabinetry, flooring and lighting upgrades to more extensive projects involving layout changes and adjoining living spaces.

Rather than approaching every project as a cosmetic renovation, the company focuses on identifying what is not working in the home and determining which improvements can make the greatest difference in everyday use.

“Homeowners often know something about their space isn't working, but they don't always know what needs to change,” said Damian Johnson of Spot-On Home Improvements. “Our job is to look at how the home functions, understand what the homeowner is trying to accomplish and help them determine the improvements that make the most sense for the space.”

That approach can be particularly important in kitchens, where outdated layouts can affect cooking, storage, entertaining and the connection between adjoining rooms.

In a recent remodeling project in Macedonia, Ohio, for example, a wall completely separated the homeowners' kitchen and dining room. Serving guests required leaving the kitchen, walking through a hallway and entering the dining room through a separate doorway.

The project initially began with the removal of two decorative pillars at the existing dining room entrance. Spot-On redesigned the opening as a custom archway, and the result prompted the homeowners to consider creating a similar opening between the kitchen and dining room.

Because the wall contained cabinetry, a refrigerator and pantry, opening it required the kitchen itself to be redesigned.

Spot-On measured the space and created concept sketches that allowed the homeowners to evaluate a new kitchen layout before construction began. The completed renovation included a redesigned kitchen, shaker-style cabinetry, quartz countertops, improved lighting, new appliances, custom architectural details and Long Leaf Acacia distressed solid hardwood flooring extending throughout much of the first floor.

The result created a direct connection between the kitchen and dining room while improving the overall flow of the home.

“Sometimes a homeowner contacts us thinking about one improvement, and as we evaluate the space, we find an opportunity to solve a larger problem,” said Mr. Johnson. “The goal isn't to change as much as possible. It's to make the right changes so the home works better for the people living in it.”

Spot-On Home Improvements provides remodeling services for homeowners looking to update individual rooms as well as those considering more extensive improvements. Services include kitchen remodeling, bathroom remodeling, cabinetry, flooring, tile installation, lighting improvements, painting and other interior home renovations.

Better storage, improved lighting, more efficient layouts and stronger connections between rooms can change not only how a home looks, but how comfortably it supports daily life.
