Johannesburg, Gauteng Sep 23, 2026 (Issuewire.com) - Finance work rarely grows in a straight line. Every new location, acquisition, fund or client brings more invoices, reconciliations, payroll lines and reporting deadlines, often long before another senior hire makes commercial sense. Afrishore BPO has launched a dedicated division to absorb that operational load while keeping clients in control.

The new division, known as Afrishore FSO, is designed for accounting firms that need dependable delivery capacity, growing companies with increasingly complex operations, and regulated businesses such as lenders, insurers and fund administrators. Afrishore's finance and accounting outsourcing model gives clients dedicated South African professionals who work inside documented processes, controlled access environments and structured review and escalation pathways.

"The problem is rarely a lack of finance software. It is a lack of dependable capacity and ownership as the workload grows," said Anton Vukic, Vice President Global Partnerships at Afrishore BPO. "We built Afrishore FSO to give finance leaders named people, clear controls and qualified oversight without asking them to surrender visibility over the function."

That focus on control shapes the operating model. Afrishore FSO supports bookkeeping and reconciliations, invoice and payment workflows, accounts receivable administration, payroll and tax-preparation support, month-end close, management reporting, KYC and AML documentation handoffs, and accounting-platform administration. Preparation and processing can move to the dedicated team while the client retains its policies, approval authority, statutory responsibilities and final sign-off.

The launch extends Afrishore BPO's existing South African delivery platform into a specialised offering for international finance teams. Businesses can review the complete division scope on the Afrishore BPO financial services outsourcing page.
