

Premium Custom Apparel Solutions with High Quality DTF Transfers for Every Business

High Quality Transfers expands access to premium custom printing, giving apparel brands, decorators, and small businesses a single source for DTF, UV DTF, and sublimation production.

Mastic Beach, New York Sep 22, 2026 (Issuewire.com) - High Quality Transfers, a custom transfer and apparel customization company based in Mastic, New York, is continuing to serve businesses and creators across the country with a full catalog of print-ready products built for speed and consistency. Known for high-quality DTF Transfers backed by next-day delivery and no minimum order requirements, the company serves as a dependable production partner for apparel decorators, small business owners, and independent creators, providing custom transfers, gang sheets, and printing supplies.

High Quality Transfers operates with a straightforward mission: to help businesses and creators design, print, and customize with consistent quality across the USA. That mission shows up in a catalog of more than 2,000 products, spanning DTF transfers, UV DTF transfers, sublimation transfers, die-cut stickers, custom tumblers, blank apparel, and DTF supplies, including premium DTF ink, DTF powder, and DTF film available in 24-inch rolls. For decorators who run their own in-house production, having reliable access to these consumables is often just as important as the finished transfers themselves, since a supply shortage can stall an entire order.

For apparel decorators, DTF Transfers for Shirts remain one of the most requested product categories. The direct-to-film process prints full-color designs, including white ink for dark garments, onto film that is later heat-pressed onto fabric. Because the technique works across cotton, polyester, and blended fabrics, it has become a standard option for decorators producing everything from team uniforms to small-batch retail apparel.

The company also supports hard-surface printing through its UV DTF Transfers line, designed for tumblers, laptops, glass, acrylic, and other rigid materials that cannot go through a heat press. These transfers are self-adhesive and cure prior to shipping, allowing customers to apply finished designs without additional equipment. For businesses expanding into drinkware, signage, or promotional hard goods, the UV DTF product line offers an additional production option alongside standard apparel transfers.

Sublimation production is available as well, with a Sublimation Gang Sheet option that allows customers to batch multiple designs onto a single printed sheet before pressing. This approach is commonly used by decorators working with polyester apparel, coated blanks, and all-over print projects, where dye is bonded directly into the fabric rather than applied as a surface layer. Customers can build these sheets, along with DTF and UV DTF gang sheets, through the company's gang sheet upload tools, which include layout and vectorization support for custom designs.

High Quality Transfers serves customers throughout Connecticut, New York, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Maryland, and New Jersey, with standard shipping available nationwide. The company emphasizes accessibility for businesses of every size by maintaining no minimum order requirements across its product lines, along with next-day delivery and same-day production availability depending on order specifications. A dedicated team of design professionals supports customers throughout the ordering process, from file review to final production, providing both first-time buyers and established decorators with a consistent point of contact for each order.

“Our goal has always been to remove the barriers that slow small businesses and independent creators down,” said a company representative at High Quality Transfers. “Whether someone needs a single custom transfer or a full production run, we want the process to be simple, the turnaround to be fast, and the quality to be consistent every time. That’s true whether it’s a first order or the hundredth.”

The company also maintains a straightforward return policy, accepting returns within 45 days for unwashed, unworn items, giving customers added confidence when placing new or first-time orders. Combined with competitive pricing across its catalog, the policy reflects an approach centered on reliability rather than one-time transactions.

As demand for personalized and small-batch apparel continues to grow across the decorating industry, High Quality Transfers positions itself as a resource for shops and creators who need consistent production without the delays or order minimums often associated with larger suppliers. The company’s catalog, along with its custom gang sheet tools for DTF, UV DTF, and sublimation projects, is available directly through its website, giving both new and returning customers a single destination for ordering, reordering, and building custom layouts.
