

AI Music Distribution Symposium: Merging The U.S. and Ghana In The Industry

AI is changing the music business and Africa Must be part of the conversation

Los Angeles, California Oct 28, 2026 (Issuewire.com) - U.S. and Ghana —

The future of music, artificial intelligence, distribution and global artist development took center stage as DogSled Music Group and Jungle House Events successfully hosted the Music AI & Distribution Symposium 2026 at the DogSled Music Group Headquarters in Ghana.

The high-level educational and networking symposium brought together influential music executives, producers, marketing professionals, AI creatives, artists and industry stakeholders from the United States and Ghana for an important conversation about how African creatives can leverage technology, intellectual property, digital distribution and global business strategies to build sustainable international careers.

Designed to bridge the gap between local talent and global opportunity, the symposium focused on the practical knowledge and professional infrastructure needed to help artists, producers, songwriters, content creators and entertainment executives compete in an increasingly technology-driven global marketplace.

A POWERFUL U.S.–GHANA CONVERGENCE OF INDUSTRY EXPERIENCE

The symposium featured an accomplished panel of international and Ghanaian industry leaders, including Emmy Award-winning and Grammy-nominated producer and CEO of DogSled Music Group and DogSled African Radio, Ms. Veda Smith (U.S.); Grammy Award-winning producer, singer and songwriter C-Tea Beats (Ghana); entertainment marketing executive Thornell Jones Jr. (U.S.), recognized for his extensive Grammy-related credentials; Jude Ameworlor, specializing in marketing, social media and artist development; and Kwesi Hayfond, President of Esports Ghana and an AI creative designer.

The gathering represented more than a traditional industry seminar. It created a direct exchange of knowledge between experienced U.S. entertainment professionals and Ghanaian creative leaders, opening conversations around the systems, strategies and emerging technologies shaping the next generation of the global music business.

One of the central themes of the symposium was the rapidly expanding role of artificial intelligence in music creation and content development.

Speakers explored the responsible and strategic use of AI platforms, including tools such as Suno and Udio, while addressing important questions around creativity, originality, professional standards and the evolving business opportunities created by AI.

Attendees also received insight into:

- Intellectual property protection in the modern music business
- AI-assisted music and content creation
- Music marketing and audience development
- Monetizing social media audiences
- Building multiple revenue streams
- Sync licensing opportunities
- Digital distribution and global market access
- Artist development and professional positioning
- Preparing music and careers for international recognition, including Grammy-level opportunities

The goal was clear: to move beyond simply discussing technology and provide creators with practical strategies for turning creativity, content and intellectual property into viable business opportunities.

FROM GHANA TO THE GLOBAL STAGE

The success of the Music AI & Distribution Symposium demonstrates the growing importance of creating direct connections between African creative talent and international entertainment markets.

Through initiatives such as this, DogSled Music Group and Jungle House Events are helping build platforms where knowledge, technology, business strategy and creativity intersect.

The message emerging from the symposium was unmistakable:

The future of entertainment is global. The future is digital. The future is powered by innovation — and Ghana and Africa must have a seat at the table.

DogSled Music Group and Jungle House Events remain committed to creating opportunities that connect African creatives with the tools, knowledge, partnerships and global networks necessary to transform talent into sustainable intellectual property, scalable businesses and international careers.
