Product Information and Responsible Lens Selection

Choosing contact lenses requires consideration of both appearance and eye health. Customers should review product specifications, including prescription availability, lens dimensions, replacement schedules, and care instructions, before placing an order.

Contact lenses are medical devices, including those sold for cosmetic purposes. A qualified eye-care professional should assess the user's eyes, provide an appropriate prescription, and confirm a suitable fit. Customers should follow the recommended wearing schedule and hygiene instructions and avoid sharing lenses.

Customers should stop wearing lenses and seek professional advice if they experience redness, pain, unusual sensitivity to light, or vision changes.
