As Temperatures Drop, Rats Move Into Attics and Walls Across Solano and Sacramento Counties

Dixon-based Integrity Rodent Proofing offers free inspections and urges homeowners in Dixon, Vacaville, Woodland, and Davis to check entry points before rodents settle in for winter.

Dixon, California Nov 22, 2026 (Issuewire.com) - As nights turn cold across Solano and Sacramento counties, rats and mice are moving indoors, into attics, wall voids, and crawl spaces where they can stay warm and hidden. Integrity Rodent Proofing, a rodent control company based in Dixon, is offering free rodent inspections for homeowners across Solano and Sacramento counties, including Dixon, Vacaville, Woodland, and Davis, through the fall and winter season.

Most infestations start small. Roof rats reach rooflines from trees and fences, and both rats and mice slip through gaps around vents, pipes, and garage doors. A rat can get through an opening about the size of a quarter. Scratching in a wall or ceiling after dark, droppings in the attic, and gnaw marks around vents are common early signs.

"The noise is the warning, but the opening is the problem," said Mike Scott, owner of Integrity Rodent Proofing. "If you only trap, more come in through the same hole. We find where they are getting in and seal it. That is what ends it."

Integrity Rodent Proofing does not use poison. Each job starts with an inspection, then proofing work that seals the entry points, clean-up and sanitation of the areas rodents used, and follow-up trap checks until there are no more signs of activity. Same-week inspections are available, and homeowners receive an estimate before any work begins.
