DECEMBER 12: ECF HOLIDAY HAVOC BRINGS CHAMPIONSHIP MMA BACK TO QUEENS

The press conference will provide an in-depth preview of ECF: Holiday Havoc, scheduled for Saturday, December 12, 2026, at the Amazura Entertainment Complex in Queens, New York.

The event will feature a collection of championship contests, undefeated fighters, and highly competitive matchups representing some of the most exciting emerging talent in the New York metropolitan MMA scene.

Holiday Havoc will be broadcast live on Millions.co, bringing the action to viewers beyond the arena.

Among the featured bouts are several rivalries that will take center stage during the November 24 press conference.

GIORGI KANKAVA VS. FARES BAACHAOUI — WELTERWEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP

One of the evening's most anticipated confrontations will feature Giorgi Kankava of Ray Longo MMA against Fares Baachaoui of Cultr Fight Club, who are scheduled to collide for the ECF Welterweight Championship on December 12.

Kankava represents the renowned Ray Longo MMA training system, one of the most respected camps in American mixed martial arts.

The Long Island-based gym has helped develop some of the sport's most recognizable names, including UFC champions Chris Weidman, Aljamain Sterling, and Merab Dvalishvili.

Training in an environment associated with some of the highest levels of professional MMA, Kankava will look to bring that competitive experience and preparation into the ECF cage.

Standing opposite him will be Fares Baachaoui, representing Cultr Fight Club, who enters the championship showdown determined to establish himself as a major force in ECF's welterweight division.

The matchup represents a clash between two competitive New York-area fight camps, with championship gold and regional bragging rights at stake.

Both Kankava and Baachaoui are scheduled to appear at the November 24 press conference, where they will stand face-to-face for the first time during the official promotional buildup to their championship fight.

With representatives of both camps in attendance, the confrontation promises to be one of the evening's most photographed and talked-about moments.

BRYANNA "MEATBALL" MAIELLO (UNITED STATES) VS. HANNAH SCOTT (UNITED KINGDOM) — FLYWEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP

Another major championship matchup will see Bryanna "Meatball" Maiello face Hannah Scott for the ECF Flyweight Championship on December 12.

The highly anticipated contest will feature two determined athletes competing for championship recognition in ECF's flyweight division.

Maiello, known by the memorable nickname "Meatball," will look to make a statement when she steps into the cage against Scott, who will be equally determined to claim the championship.

Both fighters are expected to participate in the Holiday Kickoff Press Conference, where they will have an opportunity to address the media, discuss their preparations, and officially face off ahead of their December 12 meeting.

For fans of women's mixed martial arts, the championship contest will be a featured attraction on the Holiday Havoc fight card.

CARLOS CRUZ VS. JARED REYES — BATTLE OF THE UNDEFEATED

In another major attraction, undefeated lightweight prospects Carlos Cruz and Jared Reyes will put their unblemished records on the line in a highly anticipated December 12 matchup.

Undefeated fighters carry the added pressure of protecting their perfect records, and when two unbeaten competitors meet inside the cage, only one can leave with that distinction intact.

The contest represents an important opportunity for both athletes to advance their standing and establish themselves as rising contenders in ECF's lightweight division.

Cruz and Reyes are also scheduled to participate in the November 24 press conference, where they will officially face off and answer questions regarding their upcoming undefeated showdown.

For fight fans, the bout promises a compelling storyline: two emerging talents, two perfect records, and one winner.

FEBRUARY 20, 2027: ECF ANNOUNCES AMAZON DEBUT HEADLINED BY DAVID POTTER VS. JOEY COSTANZA

Beyond the December 12 championship action, ECF will use the Holiday Kickoff Press Conference to introduce one of the most significant upcoming events in the promotion's history.

On Saturday, February 20, 2027, ECF is scheduled to make its debut on Amazon-connected streaming platforms, expanding the organization's digital reach and introducing its brand of mixed martial arts entertainment to new audiences.

Headlining the event will be a highly anticipated showdown between David Potter and Joey Costanza, two martial artists bringing distinct competitive accomplishments and backgrounds into the cage.

The announcement marks a new chapter in ECF's continuing efforts to expand the promotion's international reach through modern streaming technology.

DAVID POTTER — 2021 SUPER FIGHT CHAMPION AND 2022 MARTIAL ARTS HALL OF FAME INDUCTEE

David Potter enters the February 20 main event carrying a lengthy background in martial arts and combat sports.

A 2021 Super Fight Champion, Potter was also recognized as a member of the Martial Art Magazine Hall of Fame Class of 2022, honoring his accomplishments and involvement in the martial arts community.

With experience in wrestling, Brazilian Jiu-Jitsu, and mixed martial arts, Potter has spent years developing his combat sports knowledge both inside and outside the competitive arena.

His appearance in the February 20 main event represents an unusual intersection of martial arts competition, event promotion, and executive leadership.

Potter will look to draw upon his grappling foundation, martial arts experience, and championship background when he steps into the cage for the internationally promoted matchup.

JOEY COSTANZA — 2024 SENSHOU NATIONAL CHAMPION

Standing opposite Potter will be Joey Costanza, the 2024 Senshou National Champion, who enters the matchup with his own championship credentials and a determination to establish himself on ECF's expanding stage.

Costanza's national championship background, as well as training under the likes of UFC Hall of Famer Ken Shamrock, adds another significant storyline to the contest, pitting two accomplished martial artists against one another during ECF's Amazon streaming debut.

The February 20 matchup will provide Costanza an opportunity to showcase his abilities before a potentially expanded audience as the organization enters its next era of digital distribution.

With both fighters holding championship distinctions, the matchup promises a compelling clash of martial arts backgrounds, competitive ambitions, and contrasting styles.

POTTER AND COSTANZA TO FACE OFF LIVE NOVEMBER 24

The February 20 main-event opponents are scheduled to appear together at the Holiday Kickoff Press Conference for an official face-off.

David Potter and Joey Costanza will stand across from one another, address their upcoming fight, answer questions from journalists, and participate in a face-to-face confrontation ahead of their February showdown.

Fans and media representatives will have an opportunity to capture the moment as the two championship martial artists come together in a promotional setting before meeting inside the cage.

The appearance will be one of the featured moments of the evening and will help launch the official promotional campaign for ECF's February 20 event.

A HISTORIC NEW YORK MMA PROMOTION ENTERS A NEW ERA

Extreme Cage Fighting has been part of the New York metropolitan mixed martial arts landscape for more than a decade, building its reputation during an era when professional MMA faced major regulatory obstacles in New York State.

Before professional mixed martial arts was legalized in New York in 2016, the sport faced significant challenges in establishing mainstream recognition and creating consistent opportunities for regional athletes.

Organizations such as ECF played a role in sustaining the area's combat sports community through events, athlete development, and opportunities for fighters to gain recognition.

With a history spanning more than 60 events, ECF has provided a competitive stage for emerging athletes, experienced fighters, and competitors pursuing opportunities in larger national and international promotions.

The organization has continued to showcase combat sports talent while expanding its presence through live events, video-on-demand programming, streaming broadcasts, sponsorship partnerships, and digital media.

Today, ECF is building upon that history with an ambitious expansion strategy designed to make its event library and upcoming live programming accessible to audiences across multiple platforms.

The organization's growing digital presence is intended to feature live mixed martial arts competitions, archived events, fighter interviews, original programming, podcasts, and additional combat sports content.

The upcoming Amazon streaming debut represents a central component of that expansion, connecting ECF's regional MMA heritage with new distribution opportunities.

THE NEXT GENERATION OF NEW YORK MIXED MARTIAL ARTS

While the sport's largest organizations regularly capture national headlines, regional promotions remain critical to the continued development of mixed martial arts.

For many competitors, organizations such as ECF provide essential experience in front of live audiences, opportunities to compete in championship fights, and the visibility needed to advance their athletic careers.

ECF's December 12 Holiday Havoc event reflects that mission.

The championship encounter between Kankava and Baachaoui highlights the strength of New York's MMA training community.

The flyweight championship meeting between Maiello and Scott provides another prominent platform for women competing in combat sports.

Meanwhile, the undefeated matchup between Cruz and Reyes showcases the emerging talent working to establish itself in the lightweight division.

Together, these fights demonstrate the promotion's commitment to creating opportunities for athletes at multiple stages of their careers.

With the February 20 Amazon event on the horizon, ECF also aims to provide its fighters with increased exposure through an expanding digital audience.

A UFC-STYLE PRESS CONFERENCE EXPERIENCE FOR FANS AND JOURNALISTS

The November 24 Holiday Kickoff Press Conference is being designed to bring the atmosphere of a major professional combat sports media event directly to Long Island City.

Rather than a conventional announcement, the presentation will emphasize the personalities, competitive rivalries, and storylines that make mixed martial arts compelling.

The event will feature:

- Official fighter face-offs: Championship contenders and featured fighters will stand face-to-face for photographers and television cameras.
- Live fighter interviews: Athletes will address their opponents, discuss preparations, and share their perspectives on upcoming fights.
- Championship announcements: ECF representatives will preview the December 12 Holiday Havoc title contests.
- February 20 Amazon event presentation: ECF will reveal details surrounding its upcoming streaming debut and the Potter vs. Costanza main event.

- Audience and media questions: Journalists and attendees will have the opportunity to direct questions to fighters and ECF representatives.

- Photography and video opportunities: Media representatives can capture interviews, official promotional face-offs, and other moments from the event.

The presentation will also feature announcements from ECF leadership regarding the organization's future programming, broadcasting plans, partnerships, and continued expansion.
