Rank On Google With Press Releases Introduces New "15-Day Media Drip" Help Local Businesses Get Cited in Google AI

Rank On Google With Press Releases released a free guide detailing the 15-Day Media Drip, a news-syndication system helping local companies appear in ChatGPT and Google AI Overviews almost instantly without waiting months for SEO. Free eBook download Miami, Florida Nov 15, 2026 (Issuewire.com) - As local business owners look for faster ways to rank on Google with press releases and earn direct recommendations in ChatGPT and Google AI Overviews, Rank On Google With Press Releases has officially launched a new educational resource titled The 15-Day AI Overview Blueprint. Powered by the proprietary 15-Day Media Drip framework, the guide outlines how local service businesses can establish verifiable third-party authority through staggered, multi-angle news coverage rather than waiting months for traditional website optimization.

Large language models and generative search engines evaluate business credibility differently than legacy search algorithms. Instead of ranking pages primarily by internal website keywords, AI assistants cross-reference independent news publications to verify whether a company is an established authority before recommending it to users asking conversational questions.

Developed by Kevin Harrison, the 15-Day Media Drip addresses a common pitfall in digital public relations: blasting a single identical press release across dozens of websites simultaneously. Automated AI parsers frequently filter out duplicated text as low-value noise. By contrast, spacing five distinct journalistic story angles across reputable media outlets over a 15-day window creates a sustained pattern of third-party validation that generative engines can easily parse and cite.

"Most local business owners assume they have to wait a year or more for traditional search engine optimization to generate visibility in AI recommendations," said Kevin H, founder of Rank On Google With Press Releases. "When a business answers the exact full-sentence questions buyers ask—and backs that expertise with independent, multi-angle news coverage—AI platforms recognize that consensus and cite the business directly."

The newly released blueprint provides business owners with a four-step implementation checklist covering conversational query discovery, journalistic headline alignment, multi-angle story structuring, and 15-day distribution pacing.

Local business owners and marketing teams can access the complete framework and implementation checklist at

https://rankongooglewithpressreleases.com

About Rank On Google With Press Releases: Rank On Google With Press Releases helps local service providers and regional businesses build verifiable digital authority and visibility across conversational AI platforms, including ChatGPT and Google AI Overviews

Media Contact

Kevin H

@gmail.com

https://rankongooglewithpressreleases.com

Source : Rank On Google With Press Releases

See on IssueWire