Building a Legacy Through Experience, Professionalism, and Opportunity in the Transportation Industry

Herven Romilus, Owner and General Manager, Leads a Growing Transportation Company Focused on Reliability, Strategic Partnerships, and Long-Term Success.

Legacy Freight LLC, a growing transportation company founded in January 2026, is establishing its presence in the American trucking industry with a clear vision: to build a transportation business founded on professionalism, operational excellence, strong partnerships, and long-term opportunities.

Under the leadership of its Owner and General Manager, Herven Romilus,

Legacy Freight brings together years of firsthand trucking industry experience and a forward-looking approach to transportation and logistics.

Romilus began his professional journey in the trucking industry nearly eight years ago. Through years of experience on the road, he developed an understanding of the challenges, responsibilities, and opportunities that define the transportation business. That experience ultimately inspired him to establish Legacy Freight LLC and pursue a larger vision: building a company that creates opportunities not only for itself but also for the people and businesses it works with.

“Legacy Freight is about more than moving freight from one destination to another. It’s about building relationships, creating opportunities, and establishing something that can grow for generations. I understand this industry because I’ve spent years working in it. I know the dedication it requires, and I want to bring that same commitment into the way we operate our company,” said Herven Romilus, Owner and General Manager of Legacy Freight LLC.

A Company Built on Professionalism and Partnership

Legacy Freight recognizes that success in transportation depends on dependable relationships between carriers, freight brokers, dispatch professionals, drivers, and independent owner-operators.

The company is committed to establishing productive working relationships with freight brokers seeking dependable transportation partners, as well as independent owner-operators looking for opportunities to grow their businesses through professional carrier relationships.

With a dedicated dispatch operation, professional drivers, and hands-on management, Legacy Freight is focused on maintaining clear communication, responsible operations, and a high standard of service.

An Open Invitation to Industry Partners

Legacy Freight LLC welcomes opportunities to collaborate with:

- Freight brokers and third-party logistics providers seeking reliable carrier partnerships.
- Independent owner-operators interested in building long-term professional relationships.
- Transportation professionals seeking opportunities within a growing organization.
- Industry partners interested in developing mutually beneficial business relationships.

The company’s philosophy is straightforward: when the people working together succeed, the business becomes stronger.

Legacy Freight believes that every partnership should be built on trust, transparency, accountability, and a shared commitment to delivering results.

Looking Toward the Future

Although Legacy Freight is a newly established company, its foundation is built on years of industry experience and a clear vision for sustainable growth.

The company's leadership is focused on expanding its operational capabilities, strengthening its industry relationships, and creating a business environment where professionalism and opportunity go hand in hand.

"I didn't establish Legacy Freight simply to own a trucking company. I established it to build a legacy. I want brokers to know they have a serious transportation partner, and I want independent owner-operators to know there are opportunities to grow when we work together. Our name represents our vision, and we're committed to building something that lasts."
