ZTXEX and HKC Officially Launch Three-Party Joint Project with KAZ

Boyertown, Pennsylvania Nov 9, 2026 (Issuewire.com) - A platform for long-term development open to people from all backgrounds

ZTXEX, a global digital asset trading platform, HKC, an investment management firm, and KAZ, an operations support team, have launched a global collaboration initiative. The initiative aims to build an open and transparent network where compensation reflects contributions and opportunities extend across regions

ZTXEX provides digital asset trading infrastructure designed to support compliant operations, including trading, settlement, market signals and account management.

HKC oversees strategic planning, fund management and resource allocation to support long-term development.

KAZ leads the rollout of operations across regions and provides ongoing support to local teams.

The joint project brings digital asset trading services, operations management and local support under one framework. It offers two ways to participate: independent trading and promotional services. It also establishes a system for team evaluations and service compensation.

Under the agreement, ZTXEX is responsible for order matching, fund settlement, publishing market analysis signals and managing user accounts. HKC oversees strategic planning, fund management and resource allocation. KAZ manages regional operations, team building, member training and day-to-day support.

The independent trading option has a minimum starting amount of 100 USDT. Users who meet the platform's eligibility requirements decide how much to commit and when to trade. The platform's market analysis signals are provided for reference only. Digital asset trading can result in losses, and users are responsible for the outcomes of their trading decisions. Participants in the promotional services program are not required to trade. They may earn compensation by sharing project information, supporting team operations and providing local services. Payments are based on actual contributions and published compensation rules.

The project uses a seven-tier team structure, from LV1 to LV7. Levels are determined by team contributions, member activity and actual service results. Each level comes with defined responsibilities, service permissions and support resources. Evaluation criteria are published in advance. Compensation for services and promotional work is reviewed and settled every 10 days, with amounts varying according to eligible contributions. The settlement cycle applies to service compensation. The project does not promise fixed investment returns.

The project plans to allocate a portion of trading-related operating revenue to regional offices and local service locations, broker incentives, job development and charitable initiatives. Eligible teams may apply for support for events and office costs under the program rules and provide consultation, training and operational services based on local needs.

The three organizations will expand regional partnerships and local services in phases, taking into account local business conditions and service needs. Participation requirements, evaluation criteria and settlement arrangements are governed by the formal agreements and published rules.
